

We used to hunt, fish, farm, fight, gather, trade, explore, and love on Earth.

Now we do it in virtual places in cyber space.

It's like the wild, wild West but have we made our planet a safer place?

It's moving faster and faster and growing at exponential rates

Nothing has changed.

Man is still the same.

What you see and hear on earth will be in cyber space.

How high will the grid rise or how far will it fall?

Will our complex infrastructure and cyber tribes survive at all?

Will a beautiful solar storm with northern lights wipe out all important data and paralyze the planet?

By

Ronald A. Blumenthal